APPLIES FOR JOB
OF EXECUTIONER

Application Is Received By Governor Fisher Who Refuses to Give Name.

Harrisburg, Jan. 18.—(AP)—A resident of Pennsylvania takes the position of state executioner now held by Robert Elliott, of New York, who acts in the same capacity for that state.

Governor Fisher has received an application for such an appointment but declined to disclose the identity of the writer.

The applicant said he was a citizen of the United States and of Pennsylvania, a World War veteran and 30 years old. He said he had a practical knowledge of electricity and "a full knowledge of duty" from the experience of two years service in the army during the war.

The position pays $200 for each execution except where two or more persons are electrocuted the same day in which instance the rate falls to $150 for each additional execution after the first.

BOY, 14, LEADER
OF ROBBER GANG

Newark, Jan. 18.—(AP)—John Davidek, 14, who was said by police to have been a burglar so that his father might have money for bootleg liquor, was held today while authorities attempted to round up a gang of boys ranging in age from 12 to 15, who were implicated by his confession.

The boy recently escaped from a reformatory where he was confined three months ago after committing 15 burglaries.

The father, Anthony Davidek, yesterday was sentenced to three months' imprisonment for failure to pay his wife alimony.

DETROIT-HAVANA
FLIGHT STARTED

Detroit, Jan. 18.—(AP)—A. E. Bement, Detroit advertising man, and Leonard S. Flow, chief pilot for a Detroit flying club, took off here at 10:42 a. m. today on a proposed non-stop flight to Havana.

Bement announced he was making the trip "for a few days' vacation."

STOCK REPORT

New York, Jan. 18.—(AP)—Stock prices moved within irregular limits at the opening of today's market. With the market moving within a narrow trading area and showing little response to either bullish or bearish news development, many professional traders were content to sit on the sidelines waiting for something to happen.

DIES UNDER TRAIN

Lancaster, Jan. 18.—(AP)—Arthur J. Emmert, 45, a painter, was ground to death early today beneath the wheels of a Pennsylvania railroad passenger train in the yards here. Police believe Emmert was stricken ill while on his way home and fell across the tracks.

Stock of monetary gold in U. S. reduced $151,000,000 in 1927.

Portrait of Soldier
And Preacher is Hung
At Local Seminary

Eldest Of Three Muhlenberg Brothers Was Active During Revolutionary War, When After Conducting Sunday Services He Threw Off Church Robes And Began Recruiting Men For State Defense.

Visitors to the Theological seminary at Gettysburg recall the painting of the clergyman in the pulpit beneath whose gown is the uniform of an officer of the Revolution. That is a picture of the chief episode in the life of one of the famous Muhlenberg brothers.

It is doubtful if the Revolutionary period of America produced three more illustrious brothers than John Peter Gabriel Muhlenberg, Frederick Augustus Conrad Muhlenberg and Gotthilf Henry Ernest Muhlenberg, writes P. R. Sterling in an article in the National Republic.

Father Developed Church
Henry Melchior Muhlenberg, the father of these magnificent boys, was the man who emigrated to America from Germany and planted and developed the Lutheran church in the colonies. And the mother was just as great a woman as the father a man.

Never would her boys have developed into the great men they were if it had not been for the fine things she taught them as they leaned against her knees or sat on her lap. She was a builder of men of character.

John Peter Gabriel, the eldest son, not only staged one of the most dramatic and thrilling episodes of the Revolutionary War, but also had the distinction of being a member of the First, Second and Third Congress of the United States. He was born at Trappe, Pennsylvania, in 1746. At sixteen, he and his two brothers were sent to Germany to be educated. While there he enlisted in a regiment of dragoons and gained such reputation for bravery that the other soldiers dubbed him "Tiefel Pete."

Studied For Ministry
He returned home in 1766 and began studying for the ministry. After filling several pastorates in Pennsylvania and New Jersey he moved to Woodstock, Virginia, to which place many Lutheran families had gone from Pennsylvania, Maryland, New York, and the Jerseys. The Germans of colonial days always located their homes in the most fertile valleys. They never bothered with poor soil. The Rev. Mr. Muhlenberg found that churches in the Old Dominion were supported through the tithing system, and that under prevailing law none except Episcopal preachers could collect. He got around this barrier by going to England and being ordained in that faith, and then returning to his charge.

At the outbreak of the Revolution, General Washington, who had a high regard for him, commissioned him a colonel. The following Sabbath he took leave of his congregation in a most impressive manner. After eloquently telling of the wrongs the country had suffered from Britain, he exclaimed in ringing words: "There is a time for all things—a time to preach and a time to pray; but there is also a time to fight, and that time has now come."

Enlisted 300 Men
After reverently pronouncing the benediction, he threw off his ministerial gown, revealing himself arrayed in the uniform of a colonel. Hastily walking to the front door of the church he ordered the drums to be beat announcing the recruiting of soldiers. Three hundred brave men then and there enlisted under his leadership. It was the most exciting Sunday morning Woodstock has ever experienced.

A few days later a pacifist friend bitterly chided him for giving up the ministry to become a soldier. His reply ought to be read by every present-day American, especially by such ministers as are befogged with pacifistic tendencies. He said: "I am a clergyman, it is true, but I am a member of society as well as the poorest layman, and my liberty is as dear to me as to any man. Shall I then sit and enjoy myself at home when the best blood of the continent is spilling? Do you think if America should be conquered I should be safe? Far from it. And would you not sooner fight like a man than die like a dog?"

Was State Officer
When his regiment first entered the war it was sent to the relief of Charleston, South Carolina, and after participating in the southern campaign, he was made a brigadier general. He then returned to the North and fought in the battles of Brandywine, Germantown, Mifflin, Stony Point and Yorktown. After Yorktown he was made a major general.

When peace was declared he returned to his native state of Pennsylvania, later serving as vice president of that state, with Benjamin Franklin as president. When the Constitution of the United States went into effect he was elected a member of the First Congress, and re-elected to the Second and Third. He then retired from public life, but was again elected to Congress in 1799. Before the end of his term he was elected to the United States Senate, but resigned before Congress convened, having been appointed by President Jefferson supervisor of revenue for the district of Pennsylvania. In 1803 he was appointed collector of the port of Philadelphia. He died in 1806.

Brother Was Speaker
The second brother, Frederick Augustus, was the first Speaker of the House of Representatives. He was born in Pennsylvania in 1750, and was also educated in Germany. Returning home he was ordained in the ministry in 1770, and served as assistant to his father. From 1773 to 1776 he was pastor of Christ German church, New York City. Being quite outspoken in his views concerning the Revolutionary War, the British made it decidedly hot for him, driving him from one place to another. But he continued to preach the gospel wherever he went. He was elected to the Continental Congress, and later, upon the ratification of the Constitution, was elected to Congress and twice served as Speaker. He died in 1801.

The early life of Gotthilf Henry Ernest, the third son, was similar to that of his two brothers. Educated in Germany he came home and entered the ministry at the age of seventeen. For several years he was his father's assistant in Philadelphia, and then filled a number of pastorates in New Jersey and Pennsylvania. In 1779 he accepted a call to Lancaster, Pennsylvania, then the largest inland town in the United States, and remained there until his death in 1815.

Gotthilf had a great hobby. He was always deep in science. He never neglected his ministerial duties, but found time, late at night and early in the morning, to pursue natural sciences, especially botany, in which he won a high reputation, being acknowledged by both European and American botanists as one of the best. Various plants discovered and classified by him were named in his honor. Such world-famed scientists as Alexander von Humboldt and Aime Bonpland eagerly visited him at his home in Lancaster. He was a member of the American Philosophical Society, philosophical and physical societies in Germany, Sweden and other countries. To this day scientists consider his works as of the highest standard.

ARRAIGN SLAYER
IN AUTOMOBILE

Machine Travels Over County in Which Crime Was Committed During Hearing.

Ionia, Mich., Jan. 18.—Adolph Hotelling was brought back to Michigan reformatory here last night after being arraigned in a speeding automobile on a charge of first degree murder in connection with the slaying and mutilating of five-year-old Dorothy Schneider.

Hotelling will be held here pending outcome of legal proceedings to determine where he is to be tried and whether he is sane.

Tuesday he was taken over into Green county, where the Schneider crime was committed and arraigned before a justice of peace in the tonneau of an automobile. Although the 49-year-old church deacon waived examination, as advised by his attorney, he did not enter a formal plea. Earlier Governor Fred Green, of Michigan, who had taken personal charge of the case, announced that Hotelling had pleaded guilty.

In view of the killer's disinclination to enter a formal plea, the justice of the peace recorded the result of the arraignment as a plea of not guilty and Hotelling will be held for trial.

Avoid Would-Be Lynchers
Arraignment in the automobile was made necessary by the mobs which had threatened Hotelling's life in Genesee county when he was lodged in jail at Flint Monday night.

The arraignment complied with a Michigan law requiring that a suspect be arraigned in the county in which his alleged crime was committed. Hotelling's waiver of examination constituted a plea of guilty, but he still must be held for trial.

Governor Fred W. Green, who had taken personal charge of the case following riots at Flint Monday night which had necessitated the calling out of national guardsmen, arranged the motor arraignment.

"Application will be made to the Genesee circuit court for a change of venue, probably to the Ionia circuit court," Governor Green said. "I have agreed to appoint a commission of three alienists to examine the man after he is sentenced."

"If he is found insane, he will be sent to an asylum. Otherwise he will be sentenced to life imprisonment."

STARS IN FORMER WAR

Credited with outstanding success in their respective capacities in the presentation of "What Price Glory?" on the stage and screen, Louis Wolheim, the actor, and J. T. O'Donoghue, the scenarist, were brought together in the production of "Two Arabian Knights", at the Majestic Theatre tonight and Thursday.

Wolheim, who was the original "Captain Flagg" in the stage presentation of "What Price Glory?", appears as a hard-boiled army sergeant character in "Two Arabian Knights", in company with William Boyd, whose leading role is that of an adventure-looking doughboy from Philadelphia, who leads his sergeant into a series of amazing escapades in France, Germany and Arabia.

O'Donoghue, who wrote the scripts for the screen version of "What Price Glory", "The Wanderer", "Cheating Cheaters", served in a similar capacity in the preparation of "Two Arabian Knights" for filming. The original story, published in McClure's magazine, was written by Donald McGibney.

"Fannie won't speak to me since I took her horseback riding." "Perhaps she's sore about something."

MARRIED MEN
BY
ARLINE DE HAAS

Copyright 1927, Warner Bros. Pictures Inc.
"BEWARE OF MARRIED MEN" starring Irene Rich, is a Warner Bros. production of this novel.

SYNOPSIS
Myra Martin, secretary to Leonard Gilbert, a divorce lawyer to whom she is engaged, discovers that her younger sister, Helene, has become infatuated with Huntley Sheldon, a wealthy Don Juan whose wife, Nita, is making a fourth attempt to divorce him. Myra disguises herself and goes to Sheldon's hunting lodge to frighten him into giving up Helene. Sheldon, recognizing Myra, pretends a heart attack, forcing her to remain with him all night. Nita arrives next morning, but Myra escapes without being identified. Then she finds that Helene has eloped with Ralph Naylor. Nita comes to Gilbert's office and Myra fears that she is discovered.

CHAPTER XI
It was only for a fraction of a second that Myra sat staring idiotically at Nita Sheldon and Botts. But during that time the whole scene of Saturday night rushed through her mind; the frightful Sunday morning episode, during which she had faced the fate Mrs. Sheldon, and then made off in her car. She swallowed hard, almost choked, and then in a casual, pleasant voice said: "Good morning," and rose from her chair.

Her first thought was that Mrs. Sheldon had discovered her identity, and had come to confront her with her triumphant knowledge. In chill suspense, like a criminal awaiting his certain doom before the bar of justice, Myra waited to questioningly. The woman stood there, it seemed to Myra, for ages and ages, and then she spoke. "You know, my dear," Nita Sheldon began, smiling her sweetest smile and being most charmingly quizzical, "I can't get over the feeling that we have met some place before. Have we?"

Oh, if you only knew! If you only knew! The words were leaping up and down like jumping jacks in Myra's brain. But she raised her head and with an answering smile as disarming as Mrs. Sheldon's own, returned: "No—I don't think so. At least, I don't recall you, though your face does somehow seem familiar to me." There, that was over. She yawned and then smiled again. "But you know they say everyone has a double—perhaps that accounts for it."

Nita shrugged her shoulders and laughed, a quiet, musical laugh, her inquiring mood had passed. "Perhaps that's it," she agreed. And then stopped. But she was never wont to keep silence long, and now she wanted to talk. "I'm Mrs. Huntley, Sheldon," she introduced herself.

"Oh, of course. How stupid of me," Myra actually stuttered and looked very impressed. Helene could have taken lessons from her sister at that moment. "Now I know why your face seemed so familiar," she explained. "I've often seen your pictures in the papers. You're quite a celebrity." Myra smiled engagingly.

Nita was glowing all over with satisfaction. Myra had struck exactly the right chord, and the woman was ready to expand and blossom in this warm sunshine of admiration that she so adored.

"Well, in a way," she conceded, her dark eyes flashing. "Always because of my divorces, though. And now I'm starting it all over again. I'm divorcing him—Mr. Sheldon, you know—again."

"Really?" Myra was feigning astonishment very well indeed. "I'm sorry to hear that." Which statement, Myra thought, was perfectly true.

"Yes, and I really mean it, this time. You know of course, that Mr. Gilbert handles all my cases, and I suppose you know how they've all turned out so far?"

Myra nodded. "Yes, being Mr. Gilbert's private secretary, I do know something about his work."

"Of course," Nita nodded, now thoroughly enjoying herself. "But this time I really am serious. I'm not going to allow Mr. Sheldon to talk me out of it. He always tries to, you know. I get just so far in the proceedings and then he begins to talk, and I'm so sympathetic that whenever he begins to tell me how much he'll miss me, and remind me of all our past happiness, I simply succumb, and we start on another honeymoon. I've probably had more honeymoons with the same man than any other woman in the world." Nita laughed quite happily, Myra thought.

"But you say you're not going to be talked out of it this time?" Myra was gleaming information. In a few moments she might be able to find out what she wanted to know. She glanced towards Botts to see whether he was listening. But Botts was growing over his paper, not at all interested in the conversation of two glib women.

"Indeed I'm not," Nita fared. "Things have gone far enough. Of course, as usual, there's a woman in the case." She sighed, drooped her head pathetically, and wiped a tiny tear from her eyes with a very filmy lace handkerchief.

What a pair, those two—Nita and Huntley—Myra thought. Acting—acting—acting, all the time. Playing for sympathy. Sensationalists, both of them. It was all too revolting, but at the same time it had its interesting points for her.

"Another woman?" Myra raised surprised eyebrows, as though to suggest that with the beautiful Mrs. Sheldon the rivalry of another woman would be impossible.

"O, yes, my dear," Nita confided. "It's always been that. But then, perhaps you don't know men very well."

"I'm afraid I don't. You see, I've never been married." No, nor perhaps ever will be unless you can get out of this scrape, Myra reminded herself.

"Well, don't ever marry, then," Nita advised in a very worldly-wise manner. "That is, if you value your peace of mind. You simply cannot imagine how cruel men can be. Mr. Sheldon's such a dear when he wants to be, but he's like all the rest. A pretty face, a pretty figure, and he's off. I really can't understand them," she sighed virtuously.

"But perhaps they're not all alike," Myra ventured, hoping that this might indeed prove true.

"Oh, no. They run absolutely true to form—all cut over the same pattern. But what I cannot understand is this latest adventure of Mr. Sheldon's. The one on which I'm going to hang this case."

LAD WHO CAUSED LOCAL SOB SISTER TO WEEP IS AGAIN JAILED

Chambersburg.—Theodore Banachewski, arrested here last summer on a charge of transporting a stolen car in inter-state commerce, and who served a jail term for that offense, has resumed his taking ways, according to reports to Police Chief Byers, and is now serving from one to ten years in the Michigan state reformatory at Ionia, Mich., for unlawfully driving away an automobile.

Banachewski, when arrested here, had a poodle dog, which was cared for at a local home during his imprisonment. He created a mild sensation when he took exception to reported incidents of his disposition of the dog and carried his tale to a local newspaper which printed a story asking that Banachewski be given a chance to do good. Banachewski posed as a medicine student but questioning disclosed that he knew nothing about the subject.—Chambersburg Public Opinion.

ELECT FAIR OFFICERS

Sheffer, J. H. Fleming, R. L. Ehrhart, L. B. Sheppard, C. M. Schaeffer and H. W. Young constitute the board of directors. The directors will meet on February 2 to reorganize, at which time a vice president will be elected.

The Week of September 18 to 21 was tentatively set for the annual Hanover fair. These dates will be submitted to the board of directors for their approval at the February meeting.

SENTENCE SLAYER

York.—Not more than ten nor less than five years in the Eastern Penitentiary was the sentence imposed on John Coleman, convicted of manslaughter for the killing of Stewart Fels, on October 22, 1927, by Judge Ray P. Sherwood, Monday. Fels, it was testified, insulted a waitress and came toward Coleman, restaurant proprietor, who retired behind a counter and shot and killed Fels, when it appeared he would be attacked.

STEALS $100, MISSES $2500

York.—A burglar, who sometime during Sunday night ransacked the home and store of George H. Steckler, West York, overlooked $2500 in securities in the house, but obtained $100 in the business place.

POLICE TAKE CENSUS

Frederick's police department has begun work of taking a census for the purpose of determining the correct population of the city. Policemen, who started work at 8 o'clock in the morning, said the only difficulty they encountered was that of awakening residents, who were not up when they called.

The city has been divided into four districts and a policeman is taking the census in each section. Extension of the corporation limits, which make it impossible to tell the city's population, was responsible for the census.

ATTACKED BY ROBBER

Shippensburg.—Assaulted by an unidentified robber as he was entering his bedroom Monday night, Lantz Perry, 58 years old, of West Orange street, was severely bruised at the left shoulder.

It is believed that Perry disturbed the robber who ransacked two bedrooms, tossing bed coverings and bureau drawers on the floor. In overturning the bed coverings in the room of Miss Bertha Perry the robber covered up her pocketbook containing $110.

BLOWS OFF HEAD

Shippensburg.—Without giving any intimation of his intentions, George H. Kelly, 26 years old, went to a bedroom at his Shippensburg home Saturday afternoon and blew off the top of his head with a shotgun.

His wife, in a downstairs room, heard the shot and rushed to her husband's side. She then summoned neighbors.

HEALTH MENACE IN MILK SUPPLY

Residents of Small Towns Face Greater Risks Than City Neighbors.

New York.—(AP)—Unpasteurized dirty milk constitutes a menace to the health of the 25,000,000 people living in the so-called small towns of the United States, a survey completed by the American Child Association indicates.

"If we may use milk supply control as an indication of sanitary development," says Dr. Samuel J. Crumrine, general executive of the Association, "health department practice of the small town is still in its infancy. Its milk supply is little better in sanitary quality than it would have been if the process of pasteurization had never been discovered. The initial high bacterial count of the milk is increased by failure to ice the supply, and protection of danger from infection by men and cattle is not prevented by pasteurization."

Dr. Crumrine and Dr. Dorothy F. Holland, a staff associate, obtained information on the milk supplies of 142 small towns and cities regarded as representative of the entire country. Ninety-seven of the 117 communities giving data on the extent of pasteurization reported that they were taking no such precaution. None had 40 per cent or more of its milk supply pasteurized.

"The results of the bacteriological analyses indicate immediate need for effective milk control," Dr. Crumrine asserts. "An average of 25 per cent of the supplies examined contained 200,000 or more bacteria per cubic centimeter; an average of 40 per cent of the supplies examined contained 100,000 or more bacteria per cubic centimeter. Fifty-one cities gave a positive test for the bacteria present in cow manure in 50 per cent or more, 21 cities a positive test in 75 per cent or more of their supplies examined."

"The milk supplies were on the whole dirty, according to physical standards. In only two of the towns

PIMPLES GONE IN 2 DAYS

Pimples are often only a local skin affection. They usually begin to disappear in TWO days when Saxol salve is used. In eczema, itching stops at once. For SAXOL goes deep and kills the germs.

Miss Ethel Baker says: "Pimples would break out thickly on my face and arms. I noticed improvement at once when I applied Saxol. My skin is now clear." THE INSTANT effect of Saxol will surprise you. People's Drug Store.—adv.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

THE MORE YOU KNOW

ALL growth is based upon knowledge. The uneducated, the unlearned, the inexperienced, are the first in a catastrophe to fly into fear.
As the history of the race progressed, as people learned of astronomy, zoology, electricity, and anatomy, they became more confident of themselves, and began to court the unknown.

So that today we have in our possession a precious heritage, one that inspires us to look farther and beyond with increased courage and with diminishing fear.

In reading the lives of very great men, as well as of women, I have noted that as death approached, there was no fear upon the part of each doer of useful tasks.

Joseph Conrad, in one of his intimate letters to one of his friends, wrote that he did not fear death, that it did not seem to him a sad or tragic thing, but to him the great tragic thing in life was to lose a friend by death. You and I who have gone through the same experience are able to understand what he meant.

But only one who has gone through much searching in this world is able to face with faith and understanding such tragic events.

The more you know, the more you are able to do—and do grandly.
For 30 years I have loved and read books, books, books. Yet I am just beginning to feel how very little I have read, and how very little I have absorbed from the great books of the world. Each year I try to crowd more and more into my mind. I cannot see why there are so many who neglect the chance given for self improvement with such vast treasures open to all at practically no cost. Nearly every town and city has its free library. Never has the world been filled with such a wealth of knowledge—much of it so newly discovered.

Take Shakespeare and the Bible alone. Each a library in itself. Read books that have stood the test. Then your knowledge will stand the test.
Try to keep overcoming the unknown.

THE PUZZLE OF LIFE

(Thanking W. L. P. for the Idea.)
"Heigho! What a puzzle is life," said he,
"If money were peace then the rich would be The happiest men in the world, but oh!
The rich will tell you this isn't so."

"If work were the source of this world's delight
The eyes of the toilers would all be bright.
Yet there's many an ache in the worker's breast
And many a weary man longs for rest."

"Though rest is sweet when a man is tired
It isn't all that can be desired.
For world-wide over this fact is true
Are sad men looking for work to do."

"If health were happiness, full complete,
Then only the strong would find life
sweet.
But souls heroic we can recall,
Who have smiled on the world without health at all."

"Oh, what a puzzle is life," said he,
"For we're all what we fancy ourselves to be,
And we rise to peace or to gloom we sink
Not by what we have but by what we think."

Is it dangerous to sneeze?
I've a fever in my gills, telephoned the Old Red Rooster to black medicine case, the good doctor started off for the Old Red Rooster's house in Chicken Town.

"Tip, tap! on the sill and the next minute Aunt Hen opened the door before the famous doctor had time to make up his mind what he would charge for his visit. Wasn't that too bad? Well, maybe it was,

and maybe it wasn't, for the patient never knows what the bill will be until it comes in.

"Oh, Doctor Quack," cried Aunt Hen, "my Old Red Rooster has a dreadful cough; I'm afraid he'll blow his head right off."
"Don't worry, Aunt Hen," soothed the good duck doctor. "I'll look at his tongue and take his pulse." After which the Old Red Rooster was told to go to bed as soon as he had taken two Winky Pinky Candy pills that cure most any kind of ills.

Just then up drove dear Uncle Lucky and his bunny nephew in the Sledmobile. The old gentleman rabbit thought a lot of the Old Red

DYSKI-

NESIA

Dyskinesia or habitual constipation wrecks more health every day than any other single thing. It saps strength and vitality, causes serious diseases of the stomach, kidneys and heart, brings on high blood pressure and makes you old years before your time.

The insidious condition of Dys-kinesia is the result of our abnormal habits of living which place too great a strain upon the vital organs, especially the liver. The liver becoming weak or sluggish fails to supply the bowels enough bile. The bowels "tie-up" and the poisonous waste retained affects the whole system including the vital organs.

The liver occasionally needs a little help, and there's nothing better for this, as medical men now know, than a little ox gall. Ox gall is a remarkable natural stimulant for the human liver, promoting its normal active functioning, so essential to internal cleanliness and health.

Dioxol tablets are genuine ox gall in dainty and tasteless form, each tablet representing 10 drops of pure ox gall. To be sure of getting the genuine ox gall, be sure of getting Dioxol. They cost less than 2c each at good druggists, and a few soon tell.

Infantile Paralysis On Decline in State

Harrisburg, Jan. 17.—A report just issued by the bureau of communicable diseases indicates that infantile paralysis which although never reaching epidemic proportions during the past year, was far above the average dropped during December to a normal point. Only ten cases were reported during that month. No cases were reported during the first week in January, 1928.

It was stated that this was the first week since August 1, 1927, in which no new cases had been reported. For the year 1927 up to the latest tabulations, 470 cases were reported with eighty-six deaths.

STOP BAD BREATH
People afflicted with bad breath find quick relief through Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. The pleasant, sugar-coated tablets are taken for bad breath by all who know them.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets act gently but firmly on the bowels and liver, stimulating them to natural action, clearing the blood and gently purifying the entire system. They do that which dangerous calomel does without any of the bad after effects.

Olive Tablets bring no griping, pain or any disagreeable effects.

Dr. F. M. Edwards discovered the formula after 20 years of practice among patients afflicted with bowel and liver complaint, without attendant bad breath.

Olive Tablets are purely a vegetable compound mixed with olive oil; you will know them by their olive color. Take rightly for a week and note the effect.

Things To Interest Students At High- er Institution of Learning.

By G. K. N.

With the passing of Thomas Hardy the world lost a famous figure in the field of literature. His works, mostly novels, are full of cynicism and it is for this characteristic that he has become distinguished. He has been given a place of rest in the poets' corner, Westminster Abbey, beside the grave of Charles Dickens; a truly fitting place for one of such renown.

Academic activities were all but called off recently at the University of Arizona, located at Tucson, Arizona, when a company of motion picture players took possession of the campus for the screening of a photograph.

The picture is laid in and around a college, so the University of Arizona was tendered the honor of being said college. The track, athletic fields and fraternity houses all figure in the picture, and, needless to say, during the screening the students thought little of school work.

Should the "Battle of Gettysburg" ever be filmed, Gettysburg college would present much the same aspect as the above university, as Old Dorm and the old gymnasium were both used while the battle was in progress. It may be well in passing to say also that if the occasion should ever arise there are many capable students who might serve as extras in the making of the picture.

Preliminary arrangements for the annual oratorical contest was discussed today at a meeting of those interested. This contest presents an outlet for those students who are ambitious to become public speakers. Much interest has been shown already, insuring keen competition for this year's contest.

At a meeting held to organize a Gettysburg Chapter of the Pennsylvania State Teachers' association for this year, the officers elected were: "Jim" Baugher, president; Miss Rife, vice president; Miss Cromer, secretary, and Miss Epley, treasurer.

Last year the Gettysburg Chapter of the Pennsylvania State Teachers' association was a very active organization, and the large number of students present at this year's initial meeting gives promise of even greater success in the future. Meetings will be held regularly the first and third Mondays of each month, at 4:30 p. m., in the education room. Good programs will be arranged and prominent speakers will be secured whenever possible.

Gettysburg college, having been honored with the presence of a distinguished Japanese Naval Attache last year, is again privileged to have enrolled one connected with the Japanese Army, Captain Nobuyoshi Obata.

Last year, Lieutenant Commander Hamanaka, a Japanese Naval Attache, was so impressed with Gettysburg that when the Japanese government sent another man to the United States for the purpose of spending a short time in one of our colleges, Gettysburg was chosen for the second time.

Captain Obata is to remain here for a period of about two months, attending class in order to perfect his English, living with the men of the college, and in general getting in contact with the absorbing American college life and ideas such as embodied at Gettysburg college.

Gettysburg college feels highly honored at this recognition of its standing by the Japanese government in that it is privileged to entertain Captain Obata. It hopes to make his stay very much worth while both from an educational and social standpoint since he affords the college the unusual opportunity of introducing its ideas and ideals into the Orient.
